

Warrenpoint Port

Warrenpoint Port have been recruiting Higher Level Apprentices for 10 years and they view them as an important part of how they grow and develop talent within the port.

They currently have an HLA in Electrical & Electronic Engineering, and find that SRC have been supportive throughout the apprenticeship. There are regular communication and check-ins, which helps them sure both they and their apprentices stay on track and get all the support that they need.

Warrenpoint Port say that, “HLAs bring a great balance of learning and hands-on experience. They come in with fresh ideas and up to date knowledge and quickly start applying what they learn in a real work environment. It’s a great way for us to build skills within the team and support future growth.”

They would recommend employing HLAs to other businesses who want to bring in motivated people and develop them within their business and they find that HLAs are keen to learn, add value, and help build a strong team for the future of the port. For anyone recruiting, Warrenpoint Port say that the process with SRC is well organised, communication is very clear, and SRC’s process helps them find suitable candidates.

What the Higher Level Apprentices say:

“Doing the HLA has helped me build confidence and gain real experience while I’m still learning.”
